STATE EMPLOYEES' ASSOCIATION REMINDS VOTERS OF GOVERNORS TRACK RECORD

SEIU Launches "SuNoNo" Accountability Campaign in NH

CONCORD, N.H. - Today, Service Employees International Union (SEIU) launched an accountability campaign targeting current New Hampshire Republican Governor Chris Sununu. The campaign, "SuNoNo," asks voters to hold Sununu accountable for his negative impact on the working people of New Hampshire.

As of August 7, 2020, Gov. Sununu issued 22 vetoes, setting a historic record for the number of gubernatorial vetoes in a single year -- more than any other Governor in the country. His lack of support for legislation have had negative consequences for New Hampshire residents across categories including, but not limited to, healthcare, employment, public safety and sustainability. Notably, Gov. Sununu voted against paid family and medical leave insurance, a minimum wage increase to $10 in 2021 and multiple pieces of legislation designed to provide COVID-19 relief for Granite Staters.

SEIU's SuNoNo campaign encourages information sharing, in hopes of increasing democratic-leaning Independent, moderate Democrat, and John McCain Republican voter turnout at the November 3, 2020 election. The campaign includes a website (www.governorsunono.com), social media (Twitter and Instagram), digital advertising and virtual organizing tools.

"2020 provides an opportunity for New Hampshire to join its neighbors Maine and Massachusetts in becoming a blue trifecta — creating a path to pass a pro-worker agenda at the state level," shared Rich Gulla, President of SEA/SEIU Local 1984. "While progressive legislation has been passed through both chambers, Gov. Sununu has no issues with using his veto power to stymie Democratic legislators' efforts, even with the current impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on a state and national level. It's clear Gov. Sununu is not only putting the needs of New Hampshire residents last, but is actively harming workers in our state with his vetoes."
